Sears selects G. C. Hicks Contractors as preferred remodeling specialists

March 10, 2009, Prince Georges County, Maryland – James McClenahan, general manager of the Sears store in Greenbelt, Maryland, has officially named G.C. Hicks Contractors as their preferred specialists for home remodeling and improvement services. G.C. Hicks Contractors, owned by Gary C. Hicks, Sr. of Upper Marlboro, Maryland, is a full-service commercial and residential building contractor operating in Prince Georges County, Maryland.

Al Johnson, lead estimator for G. C. Hicks, had frequently made recommendations to remodeling clients to visit Sears as an affordable source for quality kitchen appliances. These recommendations paid off when one satisfied client visited the Greenbelt Sears, purchased appliances and raved about the quality of customer service the contractor had provided her. McClenahan, who was looking for a reputable contractor, asked G.C. Hicks to set up and operate an information booth at the store’s grand opening event and provide Sears’ customers with answers to their remodeling and home improvement questions.

“I was impressed by the professionalism and expertise that G. C. Hicks Contractors brought to the grand opening,” said McClenahan. “Their knowledge and level of customer service is just what the Sears brand stands for. They are an exceptional contracting company because they offer their clients the full range of contracting services; from design to construction and everything in between. This and the quality of the work they do makes them ideal for providing Sears customers with everything they need to have a successful remodeling or home improvement project.”

In naming G. C. Hicks their preferred contractor, McClenahan initiated a long-term working relationship with the contractor to provide quality remodeling and home improvement services to Sears customers through their Greenbelt store. G. C. Hicks Contractors will, in turn, work to ensure that Sears’ customers are fully satisfied with their home improvement projects.

G. C. Hicks is just one of a few contracting companies that employ architects and engineers along with contractors from all of the building trades. “Having a qualified and licensed contracting team of expert designers, electricians, plumbers, carpenters, and all the rest is what sets G. C. Hicks apart from other contractors in our area,” says Gary Hicks, owner. “We offer our clients the convenience of only needing to make one phone call to get their entire projects completed on time and within budget.
